HEART AND HOME TALKS

BY BARBARA BOYD

Should She Wed a Homely Man?

It seems rather astounding that a girl who writes a letter that shows externally the signs of a fairly good education should propound a query that shows such superficiality as this:

"Would you advise me to marry a young business man, who is considered by all who know him a perfect gentleman, with a good character, and who dresses well, too, but who is not good-looking? I like him, but it hurts my pride to introduce him to my friends, because he is so homely. I know they make remarks about his looks among themselves. My parents tell me I should not mind his looks, but I am good-looking myself, and I am a little sensitive about going around with such a homely man."

Most assuredly do I tell her not to marry him. And he ought to thank a beneficent providence for his escape.

But I do not tell her not to marry him because he is homely, but because she does not love him. Please note that. A girl who will stand and quibble over such a matter hasn't a spark of love in her heart for the man. She is simply being tempted by certain worldly advantages he may possess, and is wondering if she can endure his looks for the sake of what he will give her. And such a girl is not worthy of a good man's love. She is too shallow to appreciate what he is giving her.

The homeliest person has beauty for the eye of love. And real beauty after all is the character that shines through the features, and not the features themselves. Circassian eyes and a Greek nose and a cupid-bow mouth soon lose all charm, if selfishness and ill-temper and vanity are expressed by them. The pleasure that may be found in the occasional society of beauty is a vastly different thing, from what is felt, when you live with that beauty day in and out, and find it is only a mask for unpleasant traits of character. And the eyes that express love, and the lips that voice cheerfulness and kindness soon grow beautiful, when they stand for a daily thoughtfulness and consideration that make life a joy.

A fine character wins respect and regard; and if this man has the character he will be liked by all except the very shallowest, irrespective of his looks. And no true woman will feel her pride hurt by being the wife of such a man; but rather will she have reason to be proud of him, for the fine things he stands for.

This girl is foolish to take so superficial a view of one of the most serious matters of life. Good looks are not to be despised, for beauty is one of the joys of life. But there must be linked to it, the beauty of character, to be really satisfying. And if there is beauty of character, the features, no matter how homely they may seem at first glance, will soon intangibly reflect it.

The girl who marries for looks alone will be apt to find she has Dead Sea fruit, before many years of married life have passed. To get the best out of life, one should take a deeper view of its realities than this.

NO HONEYMOON FOR YOUNG ELOPERS; JUVENILE SWEETHEARTS LAND IN JAIL

Rowena Miller and Harry Gregg taken in jail.

"All the world loves a lover," sang the poet, but he had never been to Ohio or Pennsylvania. Two youthful elopers from near Pittsburg, Pa., wished to be joined in matrimony, and as the local authorities at their home would not grant a license, they decided to elope to Pittsburg. When they arrived, they were denied a license there also, and wandered to Cleveland. The Cleveland authorities brought the romance to an end by not only refusing a license, but by locking the two up.

SOME CLAIMS

(From the Buffalo News.)
"Governor Harmon has done more actual work in an executive capacity than any other man in the field for honor in the Democratic national convention. The achievements of Mr. Underwood and Mr. Wilson, or Speaker Clark, separately, or even put together, do not amount to as much as those of Governor Harmon alone. He has been especially efficient in getting things done in Ohio that were opposed by what are popularly called the 'interests.' Governor Harmon carried his state by 191,000. Yet Mr. Bryan takes the trouble, just now, to make the awful charge that Governor Harmon is the Wall street favorite among the Democratic candidates."

Aerial Navies.

Berlin, April 12.—Paralleling the action of the French republic, which is enthusiastically contributing to a fund for the purchase of aeroplanes for the army in an endeavor to make France the leader in this line, Prince Henry of Prussia, it is said today, will head a subscription in Germany. Within a few days appeals to the citizens of the fatherland will be issued asking for money with which to purchase an aerial navy. Prince Henry believes that in the coming wars aeroplanes will be a most important factor.

Bryan to Outline Principles.

Indianapolis, Ind., April 12.—The principles which he believes the Democratic party must support, if it expects to win in the coming national campaign, are expected to be outlined here tonight by William J. Bryan. The commoner will be the headline at a Jefferson day banquet of 1,000 Hoosier Democrats. Letters which he has written to prominent Indiana Democrats indicate that he will define his attitude on the prominent issues now before the party.

The Nebraska leader arrived here this afternoon and was met by a reception committee of the Indiana Democratic club. He immediately was escorted to the club building, where an informal reception was held. Representative Heflin, of Alabama, who arrived earlier in the day, met Bryan at the train and participated in the reception.

Bryan will be the first speaker tonight, his subject being "Democracy's Triumph." Governor Marshall will talk on "Two Jefferson Memorials." Samuel M. Ralston, Democratic nominee for governor, will have as his subject "Indiana Democracy," and Representative Heflin will speak on "The Democratic House."

Senator Kern, of Indiana, will be toastmaster. He arrived here today from Washington.

at least ten days, even if there is no hitch in the proceedings, as all the transactions must be certified to by the secretary of state at Washington and endorsed there. Detectives who arrested Nesbitt in his apartments declared today that while preparing to go to jail, the prisoner went into the lavatory and sought to destroy some papers. These were rescued by the officer and found to be documents bearing on the alleged bank wrecking. Nesbitt was permitted to engage an attorney at noon and an effort may be made to secure his release by habeas corpus in the federal court.

the cause of death was choking, but later it was stated that the cause was heart failure following diabetes and attending digestive disturbances.

The following statement was made by General Grant's attending physicians, Drs. Abbey and Beach:
"General Frederick D. Grant died suddenly of heart failure without premonition at the Buckingham hotel at midnight, April 11, after retiring at 11 o'clock, apparently in better condition than for several weeks. He had returned from his recent trip much improved and looking remarkably well and vigorous. His medical condition since his return and given no special anxiety to his physician, who had been with him during the afternoon and congratulated him on his good health. He expressed himself as feeling rejoiced at his renewed strength."

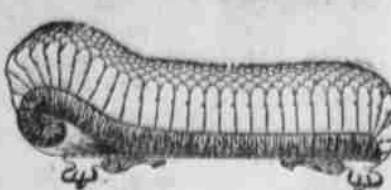

Suffered from Diabetes.
"General Grant had been suffering from diabetes and the attendant digestive disturbances, which seemed, however, to be perfectly under control."

"This sudden fatal termination came as a great surprise. His wife and nurse were with him at the time and the physicians who were called at once found the heart had stopped instantly."

Mrs. Grant and a nurse were alone with the general when he died, there having been no premonition of his sudden critical illness. The general had been removed to the hotel yesterday morning from St. Luke's hospital, where, unknown to the public generally, he had been taken for treatment. Previous announcements from his aids at Governor's Island, the headquarters of the eastern division of the army, had been made repeatedly that the leave of absence which had been granted to General Grant was not on account of a serious illness, but only for rest, and it was said that he was in the South.

Born May 30, 1850.

Major General Frederick Dent Grant, the eldest son of Ulysses S. Grant, the eighteenth president of the United States, was born at St. Louis, Mo., May 30, 1850. He was with his father during a part of the civil war, witnessed the capture of Fort Henry and Donelson and went through the Virginia campaign. He witnessed also the fights at Corinth, Vicksburg, Nashville and Petersburg. After the war young Grant entered West Point and was graduated in 1871. For a year he served as a civil engineer for the Union Pacific railway, and in 1872 accompanied General Sherman on a trip to Europe. Grant served as an aid-de-camp of General Sheridan and took part in the campaigns against the Indians. He served with Major General Stanley in the Yellowstone expedition and in 1874 in the Black Hills expedition, after which he accompanied his father around the world. He resigned his commission as colonel in the army in 1881, and for a number of years was engaged in various enterprises. He was appointed minister to Austria by President Harrison, in 1888, but resigned on the election of Mr. Cleveland to the presidency. Under the reform administration of Mayor Strong he was one of New York's police commissioners, but at the outbreak of war with Spain in 1898 he became colonel in the Fourteenth New York Infantry, and was appointed brigadier general of volunteers on May 27.

AMMANN'S Hardware

Popular in All Ranks.

New York, April 12.—"Universal sorrow was expressed today over the death of General Frederick Dent Grant and the feeling of grief was not confined to military circles, as the dead soldier was popular in all ranks here. Feeling the loss of the general's son, Captain Grant, the funeral will be a military one, and will probably be held Sunday or Monday."

The general had been at the Buckingham only since Wednesday night, having been taken there from the hospital in the hope that his surroundings would be more cheerful and add to the rapidity of his recovery. Early last evening he was feeling better than at any time since he was first taken ill, but about 11 o'clock he became faint and soon afterward the heart seizure followed. Before doctors, who had been frantically telephoned for, arrived the general was dead. It was only when an ambulance doctor was called that it was definitely determined that the general was in the hotel. Even then for a long time there was a belief that it was Captain Grant, and not his father, that was dead.

Friends believed today that his feeling of depression must have interfered with the success of the operation recently performed although the cause of death as certified by the attending physicians was heart failure.

Military Funeral.
Telegrams and cablegrams of sympathy were received from all over the world at the Hotel Buckingham today.
